4. ABOUT THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

The Collaborative Two-Day Interdisciplinary International Conference on "Human-Animal Conflict and Compensation," aims to provide an inclusive platform for esteemed scholars, researchers, practitioners, and policymakers from diverse fields. The premise of this conference is to comprehensively explore the intricate dynamics of human-animal conflicts and the crucially important role of compensation mechanisms in mitigating their impact on both human well-being and animal welfare. The conference seeks to illuminate various facets of human-animal conflicts, dissect compensation modalities, and analyse relevant legislative frameworks. Emphasising holistic policies that balance human and animal interests while preserving ecological equilibrium is a prevailing theme. The conference will also address pressing environmental concerns and facilitate comparative analyses of legal frameworks for environmental preservation. It will prioritise advancements in environmental jurisprudence, policy formulation, and practical implementation, focusing on climate change, biodiversity conservation, forests, wildlife, and pollution. In addition, the conference aims to respond effectively to the growing public awareness and concerns about environmental crises. Eventually, the evolving field of Environmental Law stands as a global effort to mitigate environmental degradation, with objectives rooted in sustainable development principles.

4.1 OBJECTIVES OF THE CONFERENCE

- To conduct a comprehensive analysis of existing legal frameworks addressing human-animal conflicts and compensation, identifying gaps, challenges, and areas necessitating refinement.
- To explore innovative legal methodologies and mechanisms for the prevention, mitigation, and resolution of human-animal conflicts, all while upholding the interests of both human and animal stakeholders.
- To closely examine the pivotal role of compensation within legal frameworks, and to formulate strategies ensuring equitable and sufficient reparation for individuals and communities affected by human-animal conflicts.
- To facilitate discussions on international and comparative legal perspectives concerning human-animal conflicts and compensation, thereby promoting the exchange of insights and knowledge across diverse jurisdictions.
- To identify legal barriers, propose strategies for overcoming them, and contribute to the development of comprehensive and harmonized legal policies prioritizing the well-being of humans and animals while maintaining ecological balance and focusing on sustainable development principles.
